

Hello:

This letter is to express my interest in discussing possible future employment. This opportunity to work with/for your company is very appealing, and I believe that my strong technical experience and education will make me a very competitive candidate for consideration. The key strengths that I possess for success in this position include but are not limited to the following:

- I have successfully designed, developed, and supported real-time solutions for my company
- Possess strong communication skills
- Designed and developed in several different frontend and backend environments.
- Provide exceptional contributions to customer service for all customers.

I attended General Assembly's software engineer immersive bootcamp from July through October of 2022. A large portion of our program was working with PostgreSQL and Django with MongoDB backend. At the end of each quarter we were responsible for creating a website that either pulled using a public API or an API created within the MongoDB environment.

On successful completion of the bootcamp, I was interviewed and hired as a backend developer at a consultant level for Allata LLC. The projects I was assigned were structured in a team environment that required consistent communication. We utilized an agile approach, which gives me strong knowledge and understanding of the full life cycle of a software development project. Along with client projects, I was also involved with several firm initiatives. My experience from both tracks includes but is not limited to:

- SharePoint administration, editing and automation
- Utilized OpenAI in coordination with a ChatGPT automation project
- Associate level expertise with TSQL
- Exposure to Snowflake environment and SnowSQL
- Strong expertise with JavaScript and some Python coding
- Strong expertise with React
